DEFY DEATH TO GET WOUNDED TO SAFETY

BELOIT COLLEGE MAN, DRIVING AMBULANCE IN FRANCE, DESCRIBES NIGHT TRIPS WITH "BLESSES."

WITHIN ENEMY RANGE

Assigned to Active Sector of French Front, Ellwood Aldrich, Formerly Whitewater Youth, Has Thrilling Experiences.

American ambulance drivers in France defy death in their night trips from posts behind the firing lines to the clearing hospitals where they leave their loads of wounded poilus. Within range of the German guns, driving over roads cut with shell holes, their work is nerve wracking.

A letter from Ellwood Aldrich of Rockford, Illinois, formerly of Whitewater, a member of the first group of ambulance drivers sent to France from Beloit College, gives a graphic description of their routine. The letter was directed to Russell F. Taylor of Whitewater, who is now in training at the officers' camp at Fort Sheridan, and was forwarded to Boyd Hill of this city, a friend of both young men.

Aldrich's letter, which is dated July 10, is in part as follows: "I am in the ambulance working, all driving Ford ambulances between the dressing stations up back of the lines to the clearing hospitals. We are in sections, each having two ambulances and two trucks, cook and supply cars and another repair car. Over us is an American chief and a French lieutenant, as we are in reality a part of the French army, receiving their pay of 7 cents a day, and are attached to a division, following them when they go into action and going 'en repos' or at rest when they are not.

We came to the front a little over a month ago, after spending about three weeks in Paris waiting for our sections to be made up, and went right into action the next day. We had three 'posts' or sectors, as they are called, just back of the trenches, from which we had to carry the 'blesses' to a clearing hospital, while others of us had to evacuate to hospitals further back. One of the most dangerous of the few which was extremely active all spring and still is, and so we were kept busy right from the start. On duty for two days at a stretch, during which we go maybe an hour or two of sleep a night, if there were no attacks, we were darn glad to hit the bed for our two days of rest.

"Our camp or encampment was situated in a small village at a safe distance back, and we rolled out from there to our posts. Our three posts behind the lines were 'hellers', situated right in regular battle positions, and the 'blesses' were after the batteries for many times got us, and talk about luck, not one in our section was hurt, but we all had some good experiences along the line. One of our cars were shot up pretty well and one totally destroyed. Our 'blesses' were all well protected, being about three yards down in the ground and being protected by the 'blesses' and 'arrive at the French and Boche shells are called, and when to run and when not to. The article has you get time to duck for the 'blesses' if your engine isn't running, but if it is you just got to trust to luck.

"Our runs were over roads being shelled, and believe me, it takes a car loaded with 'blesses' over a shelled road when it's pitch dark, because, of course, we couldn't use any kind of light. Shell holes are up to 10 ft. deep and our first trip, The Germans were raising hell—and I started. First I just missed an officer's car, then I hit a fallen tree, then some shell holes, finally I stopped just in time to pass a mule, killed just in front of me. But you get used to that sort of thing soon.

"That just gives an inkling of what we have to do. They all say we have a horsehair because we have so few fatalities, and I guess we have. The British ambulance mortality is higher than the men they carry, and we have luck the first night out, or having one fellow killed, a star athlete from Dartmouth, and another wounded, while in the last five days five fellows gone crazy. We hope it's over before many of you get over here.

"We were given two days' permission over the fourth, as we are in Paris, and sure had some time. Paris was chuck full of Americans, English, Canadians and Australians. We no doubt will be at rest for another two weeks, then to the front again, probably on another sector.

"I had a new experience in an aeroplane ride over the line just before we came 'en repos', and I went up to see directing artillery fire with wireless and two metraileuses."

HOME GUARD NOW NUMBER 70 MEMBERS

Local Unit Grows Rapidly as Papers Are Placed in the Four Banks.

—Sign Now.

Seventy men have signed up for the Home Guards, and with the posting of members' names in the four local banks as well as at the office of Fred Koebelin of Milwaukee street, the names of a number of younger men, subject to the draft, have been secured. While one hundred men are needed, and expected before the week is out, it is the hope of the organizers that more than this number will join the unit.

In the training provided in this organization will be found a decided aid to the men who are liable to call. A little preliminary knowledge of military tactics and assembly drill, necessary to a squad of men will do much toward gaining a noncommissioned officership for the drafted man.

No official reply has been received as yet granting the request for certain equipment to be issued to such units as is being gathered by the state authorities.

With the departure of Company M, organization of the guard will be hastened, that the city will be provided with some agency of protection in case of disaster. Many of the men, the city who have served in war with the army or national guard in the past, have already volunteered, but there are many more. Organizers are making every effort to bring in the new men who have joined are: W. H. Groat, J. J. Fletcher, P. K. Caldwell, Edward J. Schmidt, E. J. Haumerson, F. A. Blackman, L. L. B. Medearis and Edward E. Spalding.

WANT EXPERT TO FIGHT GREEN BUG

County Agent Markham Endeavoring to Bring Government Expert Here to Conduct Fight.

So disastrous have been the ravages of the green bug, more scientifically known as the green aphid, in the eastern part of the county, among the small grains, that County Agent L. A. Markham is bending every effort to stop the spread of the pest. A hurry call has been sent to J. J. Davis of Lafayette, Indiana, to come to Rock county at once to locate the pest from which corn and to prevent any further contagion.

Mr. Davis is in the government employ and more than any other man has been an assiduous investigator of the green aphid. He is a native of Indiana, and has done no damage in this part of the country since 1907. It is not commonly found in this part of the country, but he has been sent to the crops in Nebraska, Kansas and Oklahoma. Mr. Davis made exhaustive studies of the pest in Indiana and other states, and will come to Rock county to locate the pest and send the results of his studies to guide the local workers.

A survey of the county shows that while the pest is very bad, it is not as bad as it was in 1907. Some fields near Beloit have been affected, but it is hoped that the corn crop can be kept free.

PLAN MEETINGS FOR CITY CANNING CLUBS

Appeal to All Housekeepers to Join These Organizations and Help in Food Conservation.

The next meeting of the Canning club will be held at the high school on August 7th, 8th and 9th, next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, at two o'clock in the afternoon. All girls from ten to eighteen years of age who are not already members of one of the canning clubs are urged to join at one of these meetings.

All varieties of vegetables will be canned before the class. The instructions to be gained from these meetings by the average housewife, and by bringing many women into the work, who have not heretofore manifested an interest in the work.

Beans and carrots are still in their prime and ready for canning and dry-fruiting. Donations of vegetables for community canning are expected for the work next week.

L. A. Markham, county agent, who has had charge of the organization of canning clubs, is highly gratified with the progress of the work.

Beloit has eight clubs with Mrs. F. Gorham as leader and eight women assisting. Janesville has several clubs that are growing continually with Miss Mary Mount as leader. Edgerton has four clubs with Miss Hoen as leader. Evansville has three clubs under Mrs. D. C. Colony's supervision.

Thousands of glasses of fruits and vegetables have already been canned. Inasmuch as the fruits and vegetables the canning clubs receive and dry-fruiting go to waste, the real importance of the work can be fully appreciated.

"Rock county is one of the best organized counties in the state," declared Mr. Markham. "There is no reason why we cannot lead the state in our conservation and canning club work."

DOLL CLUB SHOWS BIG JUMP IN MEMBERSHIP; TEACHES GIRLS SEWING

Forty-five little girls were promptly on hand this morning at the weekly meeting of the Doll club, held at the high school at nine o'clock this morning.

Last week only twenty-three girls were present and the increased attendance is highly pleasing to Mrs. Devens, organizer of the club. The Doll club is conducted every Thursday morning and every little girl in the city is welcome to become a member, city costs whatever being connected with joining the club.

The object of the club is to teach the little girls how to properly handle the needle and how to sew knit, darn, and mends. Mothers are beginning to appreciate the work of the club and a few parents accompanied their little daughters this morning to watch the work.

If your little girl is not a member of the Doll club, don't forget next Thursday morning at nine o'clock at the high school.

Wednesday's Markets.
 Chicago, Aug. 2.—There was another 25c decline in lamb values yesterday, best westerns selling at $14.75, against $15.50 a week ago. Prevailing prices are $6 lower than high time last May.

Wholesale corn fed beefs are quoted as high as any time this year, some of the grassy native steers are selling $1.50@2 below two weeks ago.

Local competition in the hog market was active yesterday, with average price 5c higher. Best butchers sold at $16.30. Armour's drove cost $15.46.

Bar's receipts of swine were several thousand below expectations. The week's total will probably fall short of 100,000, the smallest in nearly a year.

Average price of hogs at Chicago was $15.62, against $15.57 a year ago and $6.92 two years ago.

Best Steers Are Firm.
 Prime steers were steady to 10c higher and others were steady to 25c lower than Tuesday, with the decline coming late on a good many fairly good offerings as present prices were weak and calves sold steady to 25c lower, a good class going at $12.25 to the packers. Country buyers are not taking many stockers and are not taking the good assortment and apparently low prices. Quotations:

Choice to fancy steers $12.00@14.15.
 Poor to good steers 7.75@12.30.

Yearlings, fair to fancy 10.00@13.75.
 Fat cows and heifers 6.50@12.25.

 Poor to fancy veal calves 7.00@13.00.

Most Hogs Show Gain.
 Hog market was generally a higher one than Tuesday, although some offerings were only steady to strong. Shipping demand continues light, but packers seem to have use for the offerings as present prices are high. Top has been $16.30 every day so far this week. Quality was a little better, but the range of prices is still wide. Quotations:

Bulk of sales $15.10@16.10.
 Heavy butchers and ship- ping 16.05@16.30.

Light butchers, 190@230 15.90@16.25.
 Light bacon, 145@190 lbs. 15.45@16.13.

Heavy packing, 260@400 14.85@15.43.
 Mixed packing, 300@250 14.80@15.25.

Rough, heavy packing, 180@250 14.50@14.75.
 Poor to best pigs, 60@135 11.50@14.30.

Stags, 80 lbs. dockage per head 14.85@15.00.
 Lams sold another 25c lower yesterday, but sheep were so scarce that prices held steady. Buyers are discriminating against the plain offerings and sorting is severe. Although city butchers paid $15 for best lambs, the packers stopped at $14.75 for natives and rangers. Quotations:

Lambs, common to fancy $12.00@15.00.

BEST PRINCIPLES AND METHODS FOR DRYING VEGETABLES

Note—This is the second of a series of 8 articles outlining Uncle Sam's short course in food drying as a war conservation method.—Editor.

By George Martin.
 Best Principles.
 Washington, August 2.—It is important that you read this article because in it Uncle Sam tells you how to avoid failure and disappointment in your war conservation food drying. There are three ways to dry fruits and vegetables: sun drying, drying by artificial heat and drying by air blast. You may combine all three.

To be dried quickly and properly all fruits and vegetables must first be cut into slices or shredded because they are either too large to dry quickly or are covered with a skin to prevent drying.

In drying by artificial heat, expose the food first to a gentle, then to a greater heat. This prevents the cut surfaces becoming scorched and hard, thus covering the sticky interior and preventing drying. Don't subject the food to a greater temperature than 145 degrees Fahrenheit. Get an even thermometer to keep track of this. It is very important and must be watched closely as the temperature in a drier rises quickly.

The time required for drying varies. Some vegetables can be dried in two or three hours, the time being dried several times to secure uniform dryness.

When the food is sufficiently dry it should be impossible to press water out of the freshly cut ends. It should show the natural grain of the product on being broken, but it should not be dry enough to snap or crackle. It should be leathery and pliable.

Don't use a closed box. It will retain the evaporation from the food and cause mold.

Certain products, especially raspberries, should not be dried hard, because if too much moisture is removed from them they will not resume their original form on being soaked in water.

On the other hand, dry the products sufficiently so they will not keep, but will mold. Don't bake it or scorch it, but dry it uniformly, through and through.

This point cannot be stressed too much.

It is advisable to "condition" practically all fruits and vegetables after they have been dried. Do this by pouring them from one box to another every day for three or four days to give them a uniform moisture.

If the material is found to be too moist it should be returned to the drying trays for a short time.

Calvary.
 The word Calvary occurs only in Luke xliii, 33. Biblical commentators say that the popular expression Mount Calvary is not warranted by any statement in the accounts of the place of the crucifixion of Jesus.

LA FOLLETTE RAMPANT.

Once more our United States senator breaks forth in a bitter denunciation of the administration and its policies. This time he had selected the embargo on the food supplies to neutral countries. His logic is all fault, as are the declarations of all pro-Germans and Copperheads. He talks as though this embargo, which would drive those nations into the war on the side of the Germans, fails to pay any attention to the statements, the authentic figures, which show these countries have exported their own home grown food supplies at exorbitant prices to the American many and have used the American produced products which have been imported for food consumption. The embargo on food supplies merely means that the Germans are cut off from their outside source and not the neutral nations. They have not played fair and must forego the privilege of future food speculation while this nation needs its surplus supplies to furnish food for the nations that are fighting this foe. They could aid by the back door without gradually La Follette is eliminating his list of friends in Wisconsin. One of the last to desert his standard is Editor Goodland of Racine. This former apostle of La Folletteism has been most consistent in his support of the senator. It was through his efforts that during the past campaign the La Follette league was organized and his nomination over Mr. G. J. Feasul was made possible. Now Goodland can not stand for the senator's anti-American doctrines and utterances, and says in so many words, "Sooner or later other men will follow his lead and it is to be hoped that sooner or later actual steps can be taken to actually request the unpatriotic senator to resign. He has always advocated the recall of public officials and it would appear to be an opportune time to bring it into play. Certainly with our own boys going out to fight a hostile foe, no citizen of the state wishes their efforts hampered by the intrigues of a scheming politician. La Follette's latest denunciation appears in his own chosen magazine and is most violent in character. It is time to call a halt in such doctrine, to compel him to look upon public matters in an unbiased manner and not seek to place his own ideas which are so decidedly anti-administration and pro-German in character, that they misrepresent the real sentiment of the citizens of the state that he misrepresents down at Washington."

The reason for cutting out the muffin is not so much to help you get up hills as to notify the pedestrians to look and see how easily your machine takes it on high.

NEW DRINKING FOUNTAINS WILL BE PLACED SHORTLY

A sanitary drinking fountain ordered some time ago by the city to replace the one broken at the corner of the alley at the east end of Milwaukee street bridge, has arrived and will be installed. Three more fountains of the same type, two for the court house park and one for Riverview park, are enroute, according to information received this morning by City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund.

News Notes from Movieland

—BY DAISY DEAN—

Ethel Barrymore, stage favorite and star of many movie plays, was born August 15, 1879, in Philadelphia. Her father was Walter Barrymore, a celebrated actor, and her mother Georgie Drew Barrymore, and she is the niece of John Drew, so that supreme dramatic ability is her rightful heritage. Her first recorded experience on the stage was at the Empire theater, New York, Sept. 23, 1895, as "Katherine" in Henry Guy Carlton's "The Indian Boy Scout." She played with John Drew and Maudie Adams in the cast. Miss Barrymore became a member of the Empire stock company, her first part being the small one of a serving woman in "Rosemary." She played Priscilla in "Secret Service," going to London with the company, and English society received her with open arms. Her beauty, accomplishments and rare talents have always made her a welcome guest in the most exclusive society, both in this country and abroad. Miss Barrymore played in Sir Henry Irving's company, being especially successful in "Peter the Great." In 1900 Charles Frohman made her a star. She played "Captain Jinks of the Horse Marines," "Cousin Kate" and "Sunday," becoming immensely popular. But Miss Barrymore had high ideals, and her appearance in "The Silver Box," by John Galsworthy, indicated the high mark at which she was aiming. This was reached in "Mid-Chance," the beginning of what many call Miss Barrymore's "new manner." With marriage and motherhood a new depth came to her art and her playing. Recent appearances have been Barrie's "The Twelve-Pound Look," "Madame Okrasia in 'Tanie,' 'Her Sister' and 'Our Mrs. McChesney.'" Miss Barrymore's movie picture work has included "The Final Judgment," "The Kiss of Hate," "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie," by Margaret Deland, "The White Raven," "The Call of Her People," and "The Lifted Veil."

landing hooks and jabs and stopping uppercuts with the adorable Clark nose! George M. Cohan's second production, "The Key to Baldpate," is scheduled for release the early part of August. Julian Bingham has already learned that the makeup for the films is different to that he uses for his stage plays.

Marguerite Clark, they now say, is taking lessons in prize fighting from Jack Denning, the prize fighter, for her part in "The Amazons." In the script of Pinaro's play a fight took place between two of the girls in the story. Joseph Kaufman is insisting that the boxing scene be made as realistic as possible. Imagine Miss Clark

FOURTH WARD LADS, RUNAWAYS, ARE HOME
Irvin Stronbush and Russell Williams Decide Fortune Can't be Plucked From Railway Ties.
The Fox Hall runaways returned last night. Broke, black as coal heavers and with spirits depressed, they sought their beds fully satisfied with the destiny of the knight of the road is but engine cinders and an old newspaper for his makeshift couch covering at night.
Irvin Stronbush and Russell Williams left the paternal roofs a week ago Sunday with the avowed intention of getting out in the world and "clean up." As it was, they cleaned them of a trifle over $48 which they had when they left, and now they are back to realize it can't be done.
The lads saw a little of the country and ere long came to the conclusion that realization was a bigger proposition than theory. It's the same old story of practically every runaway; they come home soon.
Two Lansing, Mich. boys, each fifteen, were arrested here yesterday. They had been away two weeks; one because his father beat him for stealing and drinking beer from the old man's private cache—Lansing is dry—and the other because he was an orphan upon the death of his mother, who passed away shortly after she had married, soon after the demise of his father.
They claimed their home was on Schwabach street, Milwaukee, and so Chief of Police Champion telephoned the Milwaukee department to determine whether the boys were wanted. He learned that there was no such street in the Cream City. Confronted with this, the lads finally confessed that they were from Lansing.
The chief permitted them to go with the promise that they would return home. They said they were on their way home when picked up by Patrolman Cain.

AMUSEMENTS

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

APOLLO.
Equally attractive as demure Mexican senorita or sturdy "Boy Scout," little Ann Pennington appears in her latest Famous Players-Paramount picture, "The Little Boy Scout," as Justina Howland. When asked which costume she would prefer of the two, the Ziegfeld Follies as well as a motion picture star, replied unhesitatingly in favor of the Boy Scout uniform.
"The Little Boy Scout" will be the attraction at the Apollo Theatre on Monday of next week. Don't miss it. It is given as a benefit to create funds to help Troop 4 go into camp at Lake Delavan.
Victor Moore, in one of his funniest comedies, will also be shown.

Convincing Evidence.

Jacob—Well, 'e sartinly did seem to go faster after you shot at 'im, zur—London Punch.

"Oh, he's all right when you get to know him."
"That, I presume, is a polite way of telling me that he's disagreeable."—Detroit Free Press.

The Real Man

By FRANCIS LYNDE

Illustrations by IRWIN MYERS

The struggle was short in just proportion to its vigor, and at the end of it two of the trespassers were knocked out, and Smith was dragging the third over to the wagon, into which he presently heaved the man as if he had been a sack of meal. Miss Baldwin, sitting in the car, saw her ally dive into the covered wagon and come out with a pair of rifles. Pausing only long enough to smash the guns, one after the other, over the wagon wheel, he started back after the two other men. They were not willing to be carried to the wagon; they were up and running in a wide semicircle to reach their hope of retreat unslain, if that might be. It was all very brutal and barbarous, no doubt, but the colonel's daughter was Western bred and bred, and she clapped her hands and laughed in sheer enthusiasm when she saw Smith make a show of chasing the cowering runners.

He did not return to her until after he had pulled up the freshly driven stakes and thrown them away, and by that time the wagon, with the horses lashed to a team gallop, was disappearing over the crest of the northern ridge.

"That's one way to get rid of them," said the emancipated bank man, jocosely, upon taking his place in the car to cramp it for the turn. "Was that something like the notion you had in mind?"

"Mercy, no!" she rejoined. And then: "Are you sure you are not hurt?"

"Not worth mentioning," he evaded. "Those duffers couldn't hurt anybody so long as they couldn't get to their guns."

"But you have saved the company at your own expense. They will be sure to have you arrested."

"We won't cross that bridge until we come to it," he returned. "If we were back in the country from which I have lately escaped, it would be proper for me to ask your permission to drive you safely home. Since we are not, I shall assume the permission, and do it anyway."

"Oh, is that necessary?" she asked, meaning, as he took it, nothing more than comradely deprecation at putting him to the trouble of it.

"Not absolutely necessary, perhaps, but decently prudent. You might drop me opposite the dam, but you'd have to pass those fellows somewhere on the way, and they might try to make it unpleasant for you."

"She made no further comment, and he sent the car spinning along over the hills to the westward. A mile short of the cattle river crossing they overtook and passed the wagon. Because he had the colonel's daughter with him, Smith put on a burst of speed and so gave the claim jumpers no chance to provoke another battle.

In the maze of crossroads opposite the little city on the south bank of the river, Smith was out of his reckoning, and was obliged to ask his companion to direct him.

"I thought you weren't ever going to say anything any more," she sighed, in mock despair. "Take this road to the right."

"I can't talk and drive a speed wagon at the same time," he told her, twisting the gray car into the road she had indicated, and he made the assertion good by covering the four remaining miles in the same preoccupied fashion.

There was a reason, of a sort, for his silence; two of them, to be exact. For one, he was troubled by that haunting sense of familiarity which was still trying to tell him that this was not his first meeting with Colonel Baldwin's daughter; and the other, much bigger and more depressing, was the realization that in breaking with his past, he had broken also with the world of women, at least to the extent of ever asking one of them to marry him.

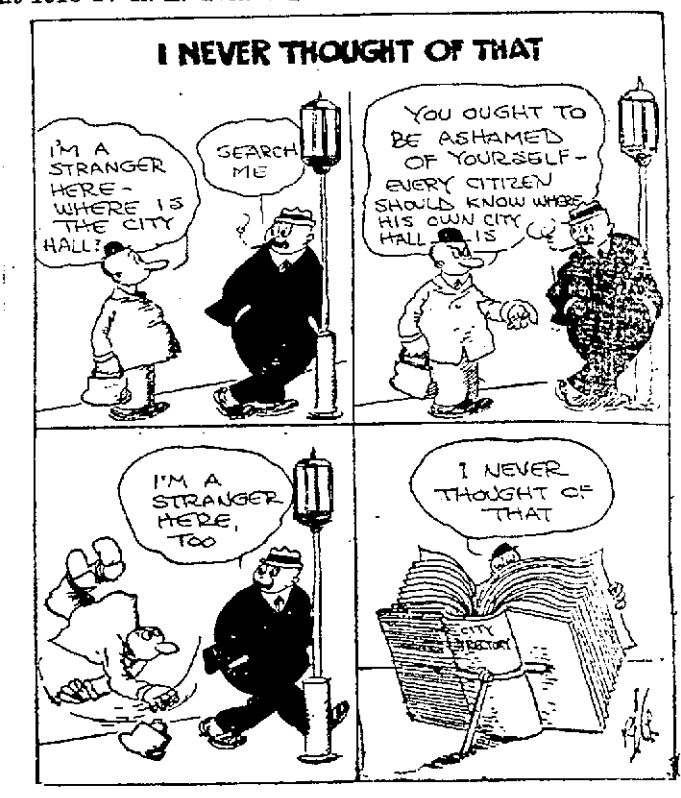

He pushed the thought aside, coming back to the other one—the puzzle of familiarity—when Miss Baldwin pointed to a transplanted Missouri farm mansion, with a columned porch, standing in a grove of cottonwoods on the left-hand side of the road, telling him it was Ellierest.

"I can't talk and drive a speed wagon at the same time," he told her, twisting the gray car into the road she had indicated, and he made the assertion good by covering the four remaining miles in the same preoccupied fashion.

There was a reason, of a sort, for his silence; two of them, to be exact. For one, he was troubled by that haunting sense of familiarity which was still trying to tell him that this was not his first meeting with Colonel Baldwin's daughter; and the other, much bigger and more depressing, was the realization that in breaking with his past, he had broken also with the world of women, at least to the extent of ever asking one of them to marry him.

He pushed the thought aside, coming back to the other one—the puzzle of familiarity—when Miss Baldwin pointed to a transplanted Missouri farm mansion, with a columned porch, standing in a grove of cottonwoods on the left-hand side of the road, telling him it was Ellierest.

There was a massive stone portal fronting the road, and when he got down to open the gates the young woman took the wheel and drove through; whereupon he decided that it was time for him to break away, and said so.

"But how will you get back to the camp?" she asked.

"I have my two legs yet, and the walking isn't bad."

"No; but you might meet those two men again."

"That is the least of my troubles," Miss Corcoran Baldwin, like the Missouri colonel, her father, came upon moments now and then when she had the ultimate courage of her impulses.

"I should have said you hadn't a trouble in the world," she asserted, meeting his gaze level-eyed.

The polite paraphrases of the confined period were slipping to the end of his tongue, but he set his teeth upon them and said, instead: "That's all you know about it. What if I should tell you that you've been driving this morning with an escaped convict?"

"I shouldn't believe it," she said calmly.

"Well, you haven't—not quite," he returned, adding the qualifying phrase in sheer honesty.

She had untied her veil and was asking him hospitably if he wouldn't come in and meet her mother. Something in the way she said it, some little twist of the lips or look of the eyes, touched the spring of complete recognition, and the familiarity puzzle vanished instantly.

"You forget that I am a workman," he smiled. "My gang in the quarry will think I've found a bottle somewhere." And then: "Did you ever lose a glove, Miss Baldwin—a white kid with a little hole in one finger?"

"Dozens of them," she admitted; "and most of them had holes, I'm afraid. But what has that to do with your coming in and meeting mamma and letting her thank you for saving my life?"

"There's mister fishmyer—we'll get him to carry the lunch, tomorrow."

"OH, MISTER FISHMYER, YOU'RE JUST THE MAN WE NEED FOR A FOURTH HAND AT BRIDGE."

"I'M SORRY I PAID MY BOARD IN ADVANCE."

"WON'T YOU TAKE A CHANCE ON THIS BEAUTIFUL HANKERCHIEF BAG, MR. FISHMYER?"

"I'LL ASK HIM TO DANCE WITH MY HOMEY DAUGHTER."

"You've got it straight," said the colonel.

"Very good. Then they're simply obliged to have your dam, or—Don't you see the alternative now, colonel?"

"Heavens to Betsy!" exclaimed the breeder of fine horses, bringing his fist down upon Williams' desk with a crash that made the ink bottles dance. And then: "What a lot of fence-posts we are—the whole kit and b'lin' of us! If they get the dam, they sell water to us; if they don't get it, we sell it to them!"

Dinner Stories

In Dublin a zealous policeman caught a cab driver in the act of driving recklessly. The officer stopped him and said:

"What's your name?"

"Yed better try and find out," said the driver, peevishly.

"Sure, and I will," said the policeman, as he went round to the side of the cab, where the name ought to have been painted, but the letters had been rubbed off.

"Aha!" said the officer. "Now, you'll get your name written down there, ever. Your name seems to be obliterated."

"You're wrong!" shouted the driver triumphantly. "Tis O'Sullivan!"

Here is a story brought back from the front about Sir Douglas Haig. Sir Douglas was, some few weeks ago, in a great hurry to get to a certain place. He found his car, but the chauffeur was missing. So Sir Douglas got in the car and drove off by himself. Then the driver appeared, and saw the car disappearing in the distance.

"Gret Scott!" cried the driver, "there's aig a-driving my car!"

"Well, get even with him," said a Tommy standing by. "Aig go and fight one of his battles for him."

A clergyman taught an old man in his parish to read. After his lessons were finished he was unable to call upon him for some time, and when at last he did, found only the wife at home.

"How is John?" said he, "and how does he progress with his reading?"

"Oh, nicely, sir."

"I suppose he can read his Bible quite comfortably now?"

"Bible, sir!" exclaimed the woman. "Lor, bless your soul, why, John was put o' the Bible and into the sporting paper long ago!"

Neighbors hurried to the place, but very little could be done as the fire burned by the strong wind, made rapid headway. Some of the downstairs furniture was saved, but the loss was very heavy, and only partially covered by insurance.

Dances were held at the Wiseman and Charles Campbell homes during the past week.

Snubbed.

"Why do you look so snubbed and humbled?" "I've just called on my wife's folks."

Which Was It?

"I wish I were dead!" "Heavens! Can't you marry her or did you?"—Cleveland Leader.

families and friends congregated from the country to say good-bye.

The Beloit unit left that city at six this morning, and after picking up Company H. of Monroe at Madison, the three units proceeded to Camp Douglas, arriving there at noon. Camp sites had been prepared, and the men at once turned to and made camp. How long they will remain at the state camp is not known. Under the policy of the war department, army trainees are to be trained at southern posts, but the storm of criticism which this course has aroused may result in the men being kept at Camp Douglas, if not indefinitely at least until colder weather arrives.

The cheer of their fellow soldiers was one of the bright spots at this morning's entertainment. As the company marched down the length of the train, the beloit men crowded the windows, cheering their new comrades. The Beloit company numbers over one hundred and sixty men, under Captain Howe Allen and Lieutenants Henderson and Jackson, with a large proportion of the company, veterans of the Mexican revolution. Beloit has contributed about nine hundred dollars to their company fund.

One of the most impressive parts of the departure was the captain's farewell to his men at retreat last night. But how the men knew his name, and before he finished his talk there was not a man in the company who was not crying with real sorrow. "I don't know why," was chosen said the captain, "and while I appreciate the honor shown me, I would far rather stay with you men. Possibly I will return to Company M when my course of training is completed, but no matter where I am, or what my duties will be, my heart will always be with Company M. It is the finest company in the regiment and as time goes on it will become better and better."

The men made up a purse of fifty dollars as a parting gift to the captain. Under new regulations the personnel of the battalions has been changed, so that Company M with Company K of Milwaukee, Company L of Beloit, and Company J of Seeshaw, now compose the third battalion under the command of Major Paul Ahner of Milwaukee.

HOW TO TELL RANK OF U. S. OFFICER AT ONCE

Washington, Aug. 2.—You can tell the rank of an American army officer by knowing that:

A Second Lieutenant has an epaulette with no bar.

A First Lieutenant has an epaulette with one white bar.

A Captain has an epaulette with a gold maple leaf thereon.

A Lieutenant Colonel has an epaulette with a silver maple leaf.

A Colonel has an epaulette with a silver spread eagle thereon.

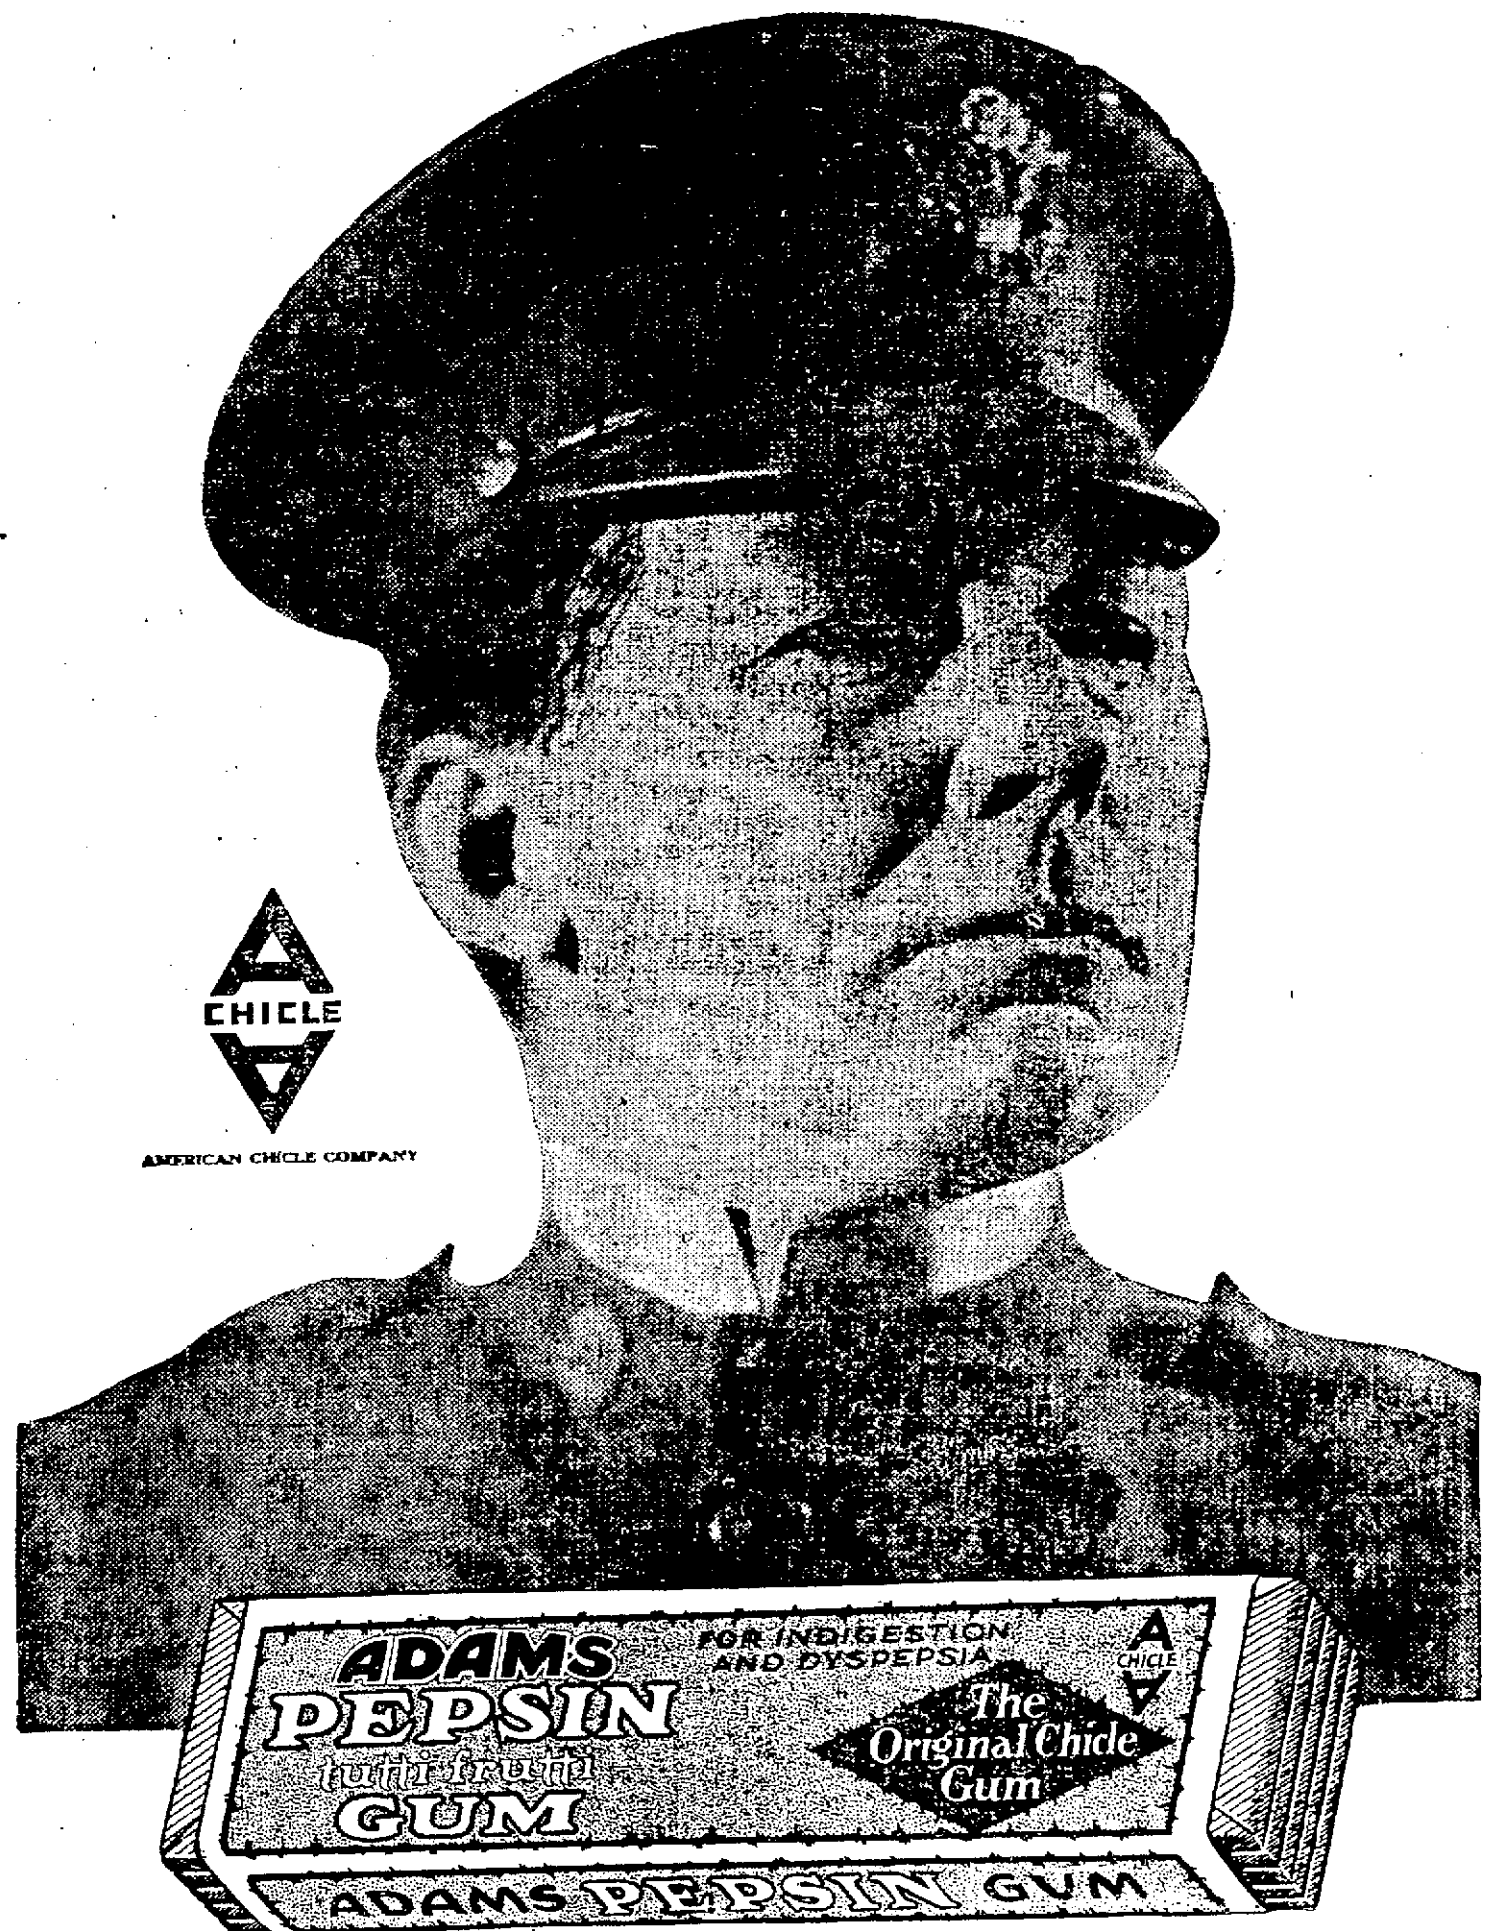

A Brigadier General has an epaulette with one silver star.

A Major General has an epaulette with two silver stars.

A Lieutenant General has an epaulette with three silver stars.

A General is exceedingly rare.

Thus far in our history there have been only two. They were Washington and Grant.

This business man has just quit his desk to command a regiment and help America win the war. Almost all the big successful men who give commands in business or in the Army prefer Adams Pepsin, the Original Chicle Gum, to any other gum. It keeps their high strung nerves steady and their digestions in trim.
